I have no rhyme or reason...
well maybe a reason but no particular form, anyway.

Used to talk about the dead, mournfully, but always dignified.

Written in praise of somebody or something... and often a song.

“That is my Last Duchess
painted on the wall.”

I was written by an Italian,
which is why my rhyme scheme is so hard to find (because it really doesn't make sense...)

BOOM!

The cat climbed the carpet stairs.

The artful aid aptly assisted in making sense of the sentence.

Dreary while I pondered
weak and weary.

She cackles and crackles out loud.

Magnified apples appear and disappear...every fleck of russet showing clear.

Name that Imagery- $200

Mary touches the harp-like morning-glory strings and plays some tenderness.

Name that Imagery- $300

The rumbling .. of load on load of apples coming in.

Name that Imagery - $400

I craved strong sweets ...now no joy but lacks salt.

Name that Imagery - $500

"I feel the ladder sway
as the boughs bend."

Four Feet.

Seven Feet.

A stressed syllable followed by an unstressed syllable.

I have 3 feet and two unstressed syllables per foot.

I am the meter and rhythm
you have to write blank verse
in... but don't worry, I'm easy to speak.

How long do I have to be? - $100

A haiku.

How long do I have to be? - $200

My name gives you a couple clues as to how long I am.

How long do I have to be? - $300

I have a specific number of lines and am related to a quarter.

How long do I have to be? - $400

A Shakespearean sonnet.
(With a specific rhyme scheme.)

I am very long and heroic (and in A block, Morgan and Jeremiah said they'd write one...)
